

British Society of Breast Radiology

BSBR President/ Vice President

Role and Responsibilities

Lead the Society, represent UK breast radiology nationally and internationally, and support research, education, clinical standards and the annual scientific meeting.

This post of President is for two years and is immediately preceded with a two-year Vice President (VP) role. During the two-year VP role, the successful candidate will be an integral part of the executive committee and undertake all the EC responsibilities.

Main responsibilities

- Represent BSBR to RCR, NHS bodies, government and international organisations.
- Oversee daily functioning of BSBR committees.
- Provide strategic leadership and direction for BSBR activities.
- Oversee Annual Scientific Meeting and educational events.
- Support national research and innovation.
- Work with Secretary, Treasurer and Vice-Chair.
- Respond to external queries and membership issues.
- On completion of term, continue for a further two years as past president in a non-voting advisory capacity.

Generic components

The committee meets in person three times per year, usually twice at the RCR in London in Jan/Feb and in June/July, and again in November at the venue of the Annual Scientific Meeting. The committee also meets from time to time via Teams to discuss important issues that need to be resolved in between face-to-face meetings.

Committee activity is varied and relates to breast imaging issues on a national, and sometimes international, level. Activities include writing national breast imaging guidance and contributing to other societal guidance that is relevant to breast imaging, as well as advising the Royal College of Radiologists on topics relating to breast radiology. Another key role of the committee is organising and delivering the Annual Scientific Meeting, which takes place in November at different venues across the UK. Although this is led principally by the Meetings Secretary, organisation is the responsibility of all executive committee officers. This includes contributing to the development of the programme, abstract selection, and assisting with the running of the event.
